STANDING WITH FAMILIES

When a firefighter makes the ultimate sacrifice, the loss reaches far beyond the firehouse. It affects a family, a department, and an entire community.The North Carolina Fallen Firefighters Foundation stands beside the survivors of our state's fallen heroes by connecting them with resources, remembrance programs, and the support of North Carolina's fire service family. Our commitment continues long after the ceremony ends. We preserve each hero's legacy, honor their service, and remind their loved ones that they are never alone.

HONOR THE FALLEN.
SUPPORT THE FAMILIES.
PRESERVE THE LEGACY.

HEROISM IN ACTION

Few other professions demand the selfless heroism of the firefighter. Entire communities depend on the bravery of their firefighters to protect and save others under the worst conditions.

When a firefighter dies in the line of duty, a family is devastated, a fire department mourns and a town or village loses one of its heroes. During those times, the fire community across North Carolina unites and supports one another. And, in turn, the North Carolina Fallen Firefighters Foundation (NCFFF) steps up to help those family members who most need support.

ABOUT THE NCFFF

The NCFFF is organized exclusively for charitable, religious, educational and scientific purposes, more specifically to lead the effort to remember North Carolina's fallen firefighters and their families.

The NCFFF compiles, maintains, and makes available information concerning our state's fallen firefighters. The NCFFF acts in the best interest of the firefighters of North Carolina and supplements the efforts of other North Carolina-based fire service and government agencies and the National Fallen Firefighters Foundation. The NCFFF endeavors to cultivate a fraternal spirit among the firefighters as they endure the loss of their fellow firefighter.
